

From the Capitol

Week of April 20, 2009

This is the final week of the 61st Legislative Session. Monday is the 85th day of the 90-day session. Most people predict the session will end on Thursday. All committee work this week is on free-conference committees that have the ability to amend any bill that was approved by the House and the Senate, but has different amendments to it. Most of those bills move easily, but as always, the budget bills come down to the very end.

The one disappointment this week was the amendatory veto of SB 371 by Governor Schweitzer. The Governor's comments can be viewed here, but to summarize, he seems to be trying to politely veto a very important business bill by picking on the wording of the bill by inserting a 'whereas' clause.

There is a move afoot to ask the citizens to change the constitution to allow annual legislative sessions. Rep. Franke Wilmer is the House sponsor of the bill, which needs a 2/3 majority of the 100 legislators. It has a lot of comments from people on both sides.

There's also a lot of work on the reappraisal bill -- counties such as Gallatin may see some large increases, while most counties will have very little impact.

We will do a final recap next week after the session is over -- it's changing fast now, so our report is short. Below is a list of the bills we are following and their status.
